By handling more than 1.2 million tons of cargo in 2018, Leipzig/Halle Airport (LEJ) has strengthened its position as Germany’s second largest freight airport and one of the top five cargo hubs in Europe.

For more than 13 years Leipzig/Halle has achieved the highest growth rates in Europe. It is home base to global logistics companies such as DHL Express and Aerologic. The airport offers a perfect set up for a growing number of international cargo operators (scheduled and charter). Currently more than 50 cargo airlines fly to/from LEJ.

Thanks to its high-capacity infrastructure, high-service standards and individual product solutions, it guarantees short distances, professional handling around the clock and rapid turnaround times for general & special cargo, e-commerce and express freight.
